PRESS RELEASE

Trinity Designs, Inc. celebrates Black History Month

(February 10, 2015) "Black History Month" is celebratory for Trinity Designs, Inc. (TDI) for two amazing reasons. Trinity Designs, Inc. is making its footprint as one of the largest, independent, African American woman owned manufacturers for dolls of color and TDI has unveiled its newest 16 inch collectible beauty, "The Essence of a Star".

"Star" has been made available for an exclusive preorder offering during Black History Month. TDI is so pleased with its newest design and the response to "The Essence of a Star" has been overwhelmingly supportive. She has quite the following in the Social Media community.

TDI launched initially with a sorority doll collection and decided to expand its portfolio to include dolls that celebrated beauty across various other organizations as well. TDI is also adding a line of children's dolls affectionately named "Nubian Bellas" to its future product lines and hopes to introduce them Winter 2016.

Trinity Designs, Inc. is definitely looking forward to celebrating great progress this year beginning with the launch of the long awaited "Star" doll. Some upcoming designs include a doll that celebrates The Daughter's of The Imperial, a diva with fashion on her mind, Dominique La'Shone, and "Elan" our signature holiday collectible.
